How can I support my son with English?

- The most important thing you can do to support your son in English is to encourage his independent reading at home. Reading a wide range of texts – novels, non-fiction, newspapers and magazines – will infinitely help your son access the texts he studies at school and the exams he will take. Reading little and often is paramount to ensure your son has the ability to sustain his concentration over a period of time, build up his vocabulary and observe good writing practices.
- When your son has homework, look over it. Encourage him to write more and to complete it before the due date. Leaving a day before the work is due can help in the revision process.
- There are a number of revision guides available in newsagents and online. These revision guides should be used throughout the course, and not before the exams.
- Working hard in class, stretching himself and trying his best every lesson will ensure exam success. This is a two year course and it cannot be understood / remembered at the end of Year 11. It must be worked at over time.
