

Lobsang, 17
Table Tennis

When Lobsang moved to the UK from Nepal, he was shy and felt like an outsider. After working with Greenhouse Coach Annie, he dedicated his time to training in table tennis and gained confidence in himself, both on and off the table. He also forged new friendships and received recognition on the national circuit, earning himself opportunities to train throughout Europe. His dedication for sport was then replicated in the classroom, where he improved his commitment to his studies and achieved 12 GCSE's. Today, he continues to push himself to succeed over and above the expectations of his parents and coaches. Lobsang hopes to continue his studies at University next year.

GREENHOUSE

We bring table tennis to thousands of young people in schools and community clubs across London. Our players are coached and mentored by former professional and world class table tennis players. They regularly compete in competitions and many of our players represent England at all junior levels, with some players becoming full internationals.

www.greenhousecharity.org

